

Contents

Chapter 1 General introduction and outline of the thesis

Part I Indices of infections in the critically ill patient

Chapter 2 Microbiological findings and adequacy of antibiotic treatment in the critically ill patient with drowning-associated pneumonia

Intensive Care Med. 2014 Feb;40(2):290-1

Chapter 3 Development of trigger-based semi-automated surveillance of ventilator-associated pneumonia and central line-associated bloodstream infections in a Dutch intensive care

Ann Intensive Care. 2014 Dec 21;4:40

Part II Respiratory viral infections in the critically ill: marker or mediator?

Chapter 4 Respiratory Viral Pathogens in critically ill patients

Submitted

Chapter 5 Clinical correlates of herpes simplex virus type 1 loads in the lower respiratory tract of critically ill patients

J Clin Virol. 2013 Sep;58(1):79-83

Part III Biomarkers of sepsis in the critically ill

Chapter 6 Longitudinal neutrophil CD64 expression as a biomarker for acute infection and severity of disease in critically ill patients.

Int J Lab Hematol. 2016 Oct;38(5):576-84.

Chapter 7 Limited diagnostic value of procalcitonin for proven infection in patients admitted on the ICU with SIRS.

Submitted

Chapter 8 Stop Antibiotics on guidance of Procalcitonin Study (SAPS): a randomised prospective multicenter investigator-initiated trial to analyse whether daily measurements of procalcitonin versus a standard-of-care approach can safely shorten antibiotic duration in intensive care unit patients

BMC Infect Dis. 2013 Apr 16;13:178-85.

Chapter 9 Effectiveness and safety of procalcitonin guidance in reducing the duration of antibiotic treatment in critically ill patients.

Lancet Infect Dis. 2016 July;16(7):819-27

Addendum Procalcitonin to guide antibiotic stewardship in intensive care - Authors'reply.

Lancet Infect Dis. 2016 Aug;16(8):889-90

Part IV Summary and future perspectives

Chapter 10 Summary and general discussion

Chapter 11 Nederlandse Samenvatting en toekomstperspectief

Part V Abbreviations

Curriculum Vitae

List of publications and presentations

Dankwoord